Nesibu Sebhat, the author of the book “ፍፁም ነው እምነቴ” kindly agreed to come and talk about his book and share his experience during the Red Terror in Ethiopia. The Red-Terror was a very dark period in Ethiopian history that claimed the lives of so many young men and women. Those imprisoned were tortured beyond imagination and to this day, the merciless killings and dead bodies unceremoniously left on the streets of major cities to terrorize the public, remains painfully indelible in the minds of the witnesses.

Come and listen from one of the survivors as he shares his story of this chilling ordeal and watch a short documentary film “YE WONZ MAIBEIL” (Deluge) written and produced by Salem Mekuria of Wellesley College faculty member.
